

Chiropractic state of the art?

Have you seen the videos?

Yes, well I'll bet you've even heard the sounds.

And just maybe you've cringed at the very thought of the force.

And you could even have the idea that chiropractic care is wrenching and popping and scary.

Not so fast...

Back in the old days, the only form of chiropractic care was the old popping and twisting method.

But today, it need not be that way. Not at my office...

Really?

Wondering why we use an adjusting instrument instead of the cracking method of adjusting?

Can you guess?

The instrument that we use is called "Impulse," and it is gentle, well-researched, and effective!

Impulse is much faster than hand adjustments, which means muscle tension is not a factor in the quality of the adjustment, and it is more comfortable. It uses much less force, which is safer for the joints and ligaments.

And is also better for your nervous system!
